This building is one story high and three bays wide. It is built of masonry laid in common bond. Wooden double doors with a sheet glass panel in each one occupy the center bay. These are framed by aluminum pilasters which also serve as frames for the large flanking windows which are composed of two sheet glass panels each.

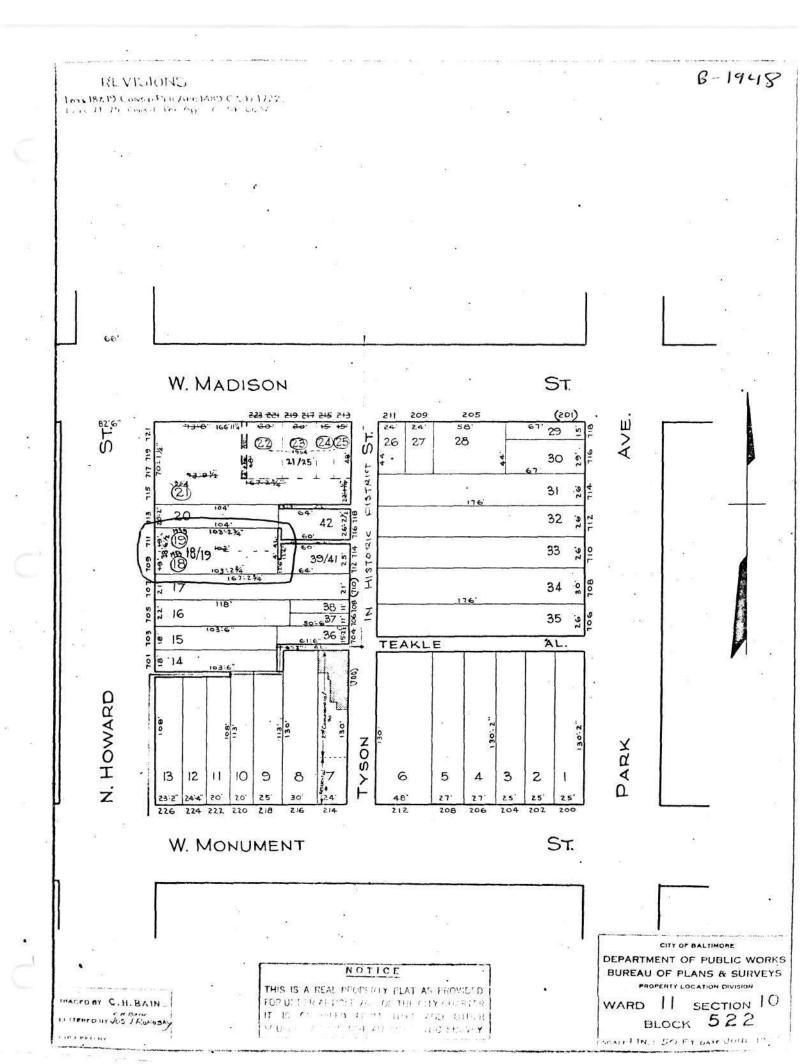

Beneath both windows are underlights of square glass. There are sixty-three lights on each side. Above the windows, similar squares of glass form a sort of transom of ninety-eight lights. Together with the forty-nine light transom over the door, these squares form a "T" with elongated arms.

Above this (and spanning most of the width of the door and the flanking windows) is a long rectangular recess, which is blank. At the top of the facade is a stepped parapet which is topped in stone.
